TURKEY SHOWS HER TEETH

Special Privileges of Foreigners in That Country Are Abrogated by Turkish Government

Washington, Sept. 10.—Turkey formally notified the United States and the nations of the world today that she had abrogated the series of conventions, treaties and privileges, originating as early as the eleventh century, whereby foreigners in the Ottoman Empire have been exempt from local jurisdiction in civil and criminal cases. Foreign subjects no longer enjoy what is known as extra territorial rights, through which they have been tried by their own judges and the representatives or consuls.

"The removal of every kind of privileges enjoyed by the powers in excess of what the general principles of international law allows is the meaning of this step," A Rustem Bey, Turkish ambassador to the U. S. declared tonight. "This war is Turkey's opportunity."

No intimation was given by the ambassador as to whether the action foreshadowed war on Great Britain, without whose consent in the past no such radical action would have been attempted.

Among diplomats of the allied powers however, the belief prevailed tonight that Turkey was appealing to the nationalist sentiment of her people and was ready to seize upon any difficulties that may arise from Great Britain as a pretext to obtain war.

NOW CHARGED WITH MURDER

New Indictment Found Against Mrs. Carman in Connection With Killing of Mrs. Bailey.

Minneapolis, N. Y., Sept. 10.—A super-seeding indictment charging murder in the first degree was found this afternoon against Mrs. Florence Carman by the grand jury investigating the killing of Mrs. Louise Bailey, shot by an unseen assailant in the office of Dr. Edward Carman at Freeport on June 30 last. Mrs. Carman had previously been indicted for manslaughter.

Mrs. Carman, who had been at liberty under $15,000 bail, was brought to Minneapolis to Freeport by her counsel in anticipation that such an indictment would be returned. She was arraigned immediately and committed without bail for trial.

The grand jury which indicted Mrs. Carman was the same that considered the case in July and returned the indictment charging her with manslaughter. Since then, however, new witnesses had been found corroborating the stories told by Celia Coleman, maid in the Carman household, and Frank Parrell, a tramp, witnesses for the state.

Mrs. Carman's trial may be hastened if Dist. Atty. Smith requests that the supreme court hold a special session to hear the case. Otherwise it is hardly likely that it will be reached before December.

MRS. SCOTT THE HOSTESS

Entertains Large Party at Her Summer Home on Gerlish Island.

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. H. B. Scott of Burlington, Iowa, gave an at-home party to her friends at her beautiful summer cottage on Gerlish Island.

At 3.30 p. m. there was a musical feature by Miss Bertha Runkle, accompanied by Mrs. Ingalls, danseuse, exponent of rhythmic expression. Miss Runkle also rendered a solo, accompanied herself on the harp. The natural scenery of the beautiful evergreen woods furnished a picturesque setting for the dancing. The weather being so cool, tea and lemonade were served in the cottage, instead of out doors as intended. In the evening Japanese lanterns were hung about the grounds and in the cottage, general dancing was enjoyed also.

There were over a hundred present including the village folks and guests from the neighboring towns.

Mrs. Scott is very popular with the townspeople and every year gives some entertainment for their benefit.

P. A. C. OBSERVE THEIR TWENTY-NINTH ANNIVERSARY

Single Men Defeated Married Men in Fine Game--Fine Dinner, Good Time--At Club House in Evening.

The twenty-ninth anniversary of the Portsmouth Athletic Club was observed by the club members on Thursday with an outing at Rye Beach. It was a very fine time despite the cold weather and there was a big turn out of the members, nearly two hundred being present at the afternoon outing.

The outing was held at Rye Beach and the trip made on special electric cars. The members of the club with guests met at the club house on Court street and headed by President William J. Carter, the Board of Directors and the Salmon Falls band, the ex-presidents of the club then the club members marched through Chestnut, State, Pleasant streets to Market Square where special cars were waiting.

At Rye Beach a shore dinner was waiting, having been prepared by Caterer Percy Kelley. It was in the opinion of everybody, the best that has been served for a long time. Everything was done just right and there was more than enough. Considerable time was taken with this important matter and then after cigars had been lighted everybody adjourned to the base ball field.

Here there was an important matter to be attended to, no other than the annual base ball game between the married and single men. For as far back as memory goes, 7 years, the married men have had everything their own way. In the ball game, and it had become a recognized thing that it was a battle in which the single men would have to make a retreat to escape being surrounded and eliminated for further use. When war was declared, it was seen that the single men had secured new allies and under the able leadership of Sir John Newell started the attack at once. General Woods in command of the Married (Germans) had counted on their former victories and their more intimate knowledge of the war game; being married men, to easily route the allies, but they were strangely entrenched and had a number of heavy siege guns in place, including Bill Brackett, Charles Brackett, George McPheters, Ralph Brackett, Mose Howard and Jack Leary, all of the imperial guard who have been used with telling effect in the Sunset engagements. The married men had a number of big calibre guns in the engagement, including Ira Newick, Tom Lynskey, General Woods, "Spider" Trueman, and Senior Charles Brackett. In Newick was on the firing line for the married men and George McPheters for the single men and it was a great battle, with the score one to one up to the seventh when the married men were obliged to retreat which they did in good order, but the single men won 4 to 1.

The line ups were: Single men--McPheters, pitch; I. Brackett, catch; Leary, first; Howard, second; C. H. Brackett, third; Bill Brackett, short; John Mitchell, left.

DAILY SPORT LETTER

(By Frank G. Menko)
New York, Sept. 11.—Why don't the big league magnates get together and offer cash rewards for members of the clubs that finish second, third and fourth each season?
The team that finishes first mingles in the world series and each of the players get a nice divvy. But there's no financial reward for the clubs that finish second, third and fourth, even if they are only half a game behind, as was the case in 1908 when the Tigers beat out the Naps.

If the magnates offered $10,000 to be split among the players of the team finishing second, $7,500 to the third team players and $5,000 to the players on the fourth team, it would result in adding to the income of the magnates because there would be rivalry to the last day of the season and therefore increased attendance.

In the American League now the Athletics are so far ahead that nothing but a miracle will enable another team to beat them out. The 1914 pennant race, as far as the American League is concerned, is over. There is little glory for teams finishing second, third or fourth, and the teams aren't exerting themselves to land those positions.

This means that for weeks before the season has closed the interest in American League baseball has been dead. Seven of the teams have nothing to fight for and the crowds aren't lured to any extent by teams that can achieve but little by victory and lose nothing by defeat.

How different the situation would be if there were prizes for the teams to contest for. There'd be a merry little battle among the other seven teams to land in one of the positions. Their interest in the fight would continue right to the finish of the season. They would put up better ball games and would fight harder. There would be lasting interest in the race among the fans in the towns whose clubs had a chance for one of the prize positions.

If $10,000 were offered for second place, $7,500 for third and $5,000 for fourth place it would mean that the eight magnates would have to chip in about $2,800 each. They would get this back ten-fold each season through extra attendance at the bag end of the season to see the battles for second, third and fourth position.

The condition in the National League this season is somewhat different than that in the American. The interest in the pennant fight, with four teams still having a chance at the first place honors, is still high, and big crowds attend all the games in which the contending teams figure. But very soon one or another of the four must pull away and open a gap wide enough to catch the pennant before the season really ends—unless all signs go wrong.

It seems a little unjust to the players on the three teams who will have come so near to winning the flag only to lose in the end, that they should not get some extra stipend for the game fight they have made. If the scheme of awarding cash prizes to the players on the teams that finish in second, third and fourth place were in effect now it would work to the advantage of both the players and the magnates.

Let's assume that during the last few days of the season Chicago and St. Louis both have a chance for second place. They won't draw a big crowd to see them fight it out merely for position, but if $10,000 was at stake in that series it seems certain that at least 5000 additional fans would turn out for each of the four games. That would make about $20,000. At an average price of 50 cents a head it would mean $10,000 extra receipts, or $5000 for each magnate. This would be almost double the cost of their assessment for the prizes—and this would come from one series alone.

Thomas Egan, the famous Irish tenor, after completing an extended tour of the Pacific coast, intended paying a visit to his home in Ireland and has engaged passage on the Celtic but before sailing was urged to cancel his reservations in order to appear at the Asbury Park, N. J., Auditorium. Through this lucky chance he avoided the trouble and difficulty of returning to America for the coming season, which the war is now causing European artists with American engagements. The other Irish tenor, John McCormack, has recently arrived in New York on the same steamer, the Celtic, being one of six passengers who occupied a state room "built for two."

The Egan Concert Tour, which will be the most extensive tour of New England for a concert star, will include Portsmouth, in November. One of the artists appearing with Egan, is Arthur Fischer, pianist of New York.

THE UP TO DATE HATS
In designing and producing the 1914 Fall models, Lamson and Hubbard were careful not to follow the precedents, but rather to make precedents. This must surely create in all lovers of clever, correct hats a desire to inspect their latest models. There now awaits your consideration many new and interesting designs, some extreme some otherwise, but all correct. There is as wide a difference in hats as in anything else and their models show that correctness in design which at once distinguishes them. The proper effects, correct fittings, superb finish show the result of years' service to a large clientele. These models may

MEANING OF COMMON MILITARY TERMS

In these days when everywhere there are "wars and rumors of wars" and all the talk is of things military, the newspapers are filled with martial terms that are bound to puzzle the layman.

It is to be presumed that everyone interested in the war knows all about infantry, but of cavalry, artillery and other terms, perhaps not so much is known. Here is a brief "war dictionary," explaining the most often used terms relating to the latter:

Cavalry.
Squadron—150 men.
Regiment—Three squadrons and a machine gun section.

Brigade—Three regiments. When acting independently, horse artillery and engineers are attached.

Division—Four cavalry brigades, two horse artillery brigades, four field troops of engineers, one signal squadron, four signal troops, four cavalry field ambulances, together with transport and train. This represents a total of 9,302 officers and men with 9,307 horses, and a number of motor cars, motor tricycles and bicycles. Number of combatants about 7,000.

Artillery.
Battery is composed as follows:
Horse artillery—6 13-pounder guns, 205 officers and men.

Field artillery—6 18-pounders and 203 officers and men.

Howitzer—6 5-in. guns, and 101 officers and men.

Heavy—4 "Long Toms" and 171 officers and men.

Carrion artillery—A variable quantity according to the men and guns on the size of the fort to be manned.

In the French army a battery consists of four guns.

A brigade consists in the case of horse artillery, of two batteries and ammunition column (671 officers and men and 756 horses). In the case of field artillery of three batteries and ammunition column (793 men and 733 horses). In the case of field howitzer artillery, of three batteries and ammunition column.

Shell—A hollow metal projectile fired by artillery, containing a bursting charge, which is exploded by a time or percussion fuse.

Shrapnel—A shell filled with bullets and containing a small bursting charge just sufficient to split the shell open, and release its bullets at any given point.

Flying Corps.
Aeroplane Squadron—Twelve aeroplanes.

Aeroplane and kite squadron—Two aeroplanes and two kites.

An alrship battalion in the British army consists of from 20 to 30 officers and nearly 200 men.

Minor Units.
File—Two men.
Section—Cavalry, 4 men; Infantry, one-eighth of a company (about 30 men); artillery, two guns and their crews and wagons; medical corps, 3 Red Cross wagons, their stretcher bearers, doctors and orderlies; field ambulance, three sections of medical corps.

Mrs. John P. Sweetser and son Harold have returned from Alton Bay. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Woods who have been enjoying camp life at Newington have returned home.

BATTLESHIPS TO REMAIN IN MEXICAN WATERS

The navy department has cancelled the orders of the battleships which were to return to their home yards this month. Orders have been sent that they stay in Mexican waters until further notice.

Three weeks ago the department issued orders that all United States naval craft then in Mexican waters leave not later than Sept. 1. A few days later they changed the orders and notified the commanders that they would stay at Mexico until further orders were sent. This action by the navy department is said to be the result of several outbreaks in Mexico in the past two weeks.

The first class battleship New Jersey, Virginia and Georgia of the 14th division, Atlantic fleet, which are at present at Vera Cruz, were preparing to sail for this port. The New Jersey left Vera Cruz last week and started for this port. She was called back, however. The Georgia has not moved out of Vera Cruz since she arrived there last April. The Virginia is scheduled to arrive at the Boston yard by Oct. 1. She is badly in need of repairs.

The scout cruiser Chester, now at the Boston yard, will probably replace the Virginia at Vera Cruz. The Chester will have a new commander, Commander Moffett, who has been in charge of the Chester, has been transferred to the training station at the Great Lakes. He will be succeeded by Commander J. R. Y. Blakely, who has been located at the bureau of navigation in Washington.

A SKIDDING AUTO

Furnishes Excitement and Misses a Show Window.

A skidding automobile furnished a little bit of excitement Thursday morning. The machine, was being driven up Market street, when two of the wheels slipped into ruts near the car track. The driver gave a quick turn of the wheel, with the result that the car skidded, both front wheels jumping the six inch sidewalk in front of Northwick's store, the car stopping a few feet from the display window. The driver pushed the automobile from the sidewalk and drove on his way.

LAWN PARTY

On Thursday evening the Ladies Aid Society of the Pearl street Baptist church held a lawn party at the home of Mrs. Joseph Ackerman, on Maplewood avenue. Those who presided over the various booths were: Candy table—Miss Alice Hutchins. Bundle table—Miss Bertha Ackerman.

Cake and Ice Cream—Mrs. Lord, Mrs. Oliver and Mrs. Clark. Music was furnished by a graphophone and hurdy gurdy.

A large number of people attended and it was a big success.

A good sum of money was realized which will be used for the benefit of the Society.

JAPAN JOINS AGREEMENT WITH ALLIES.

Petrograd, Sept. 10.—A dispatch from Tokio states that Japan has joined the agreement of the Allies not to conclude peace without the consent of the Allied Nations.

Japan has informed Russia, the dispatch says, that she will not make peace with Germany until the war in Europe is ended, even if Japan couples Kiauchow before them.

FUTURE RULER OF RUSSIA TO TAKE PART

St. Petersburg, Sept. 10.—The Czar has announced his intention of allowing the young Czarovich to take a more active interest in public affairs. Although he is still a boy in years, the latter seems fully conscious of his exalted rank and destiny.

There can be no question of his taking any initiative yet, but the Czar believes that he should make more public appearances and move more often among the people whom he will some day rule.

Although he is fully alive to the danger of this course, the Czar is determined. He feels keenly the ridiculous stories that are spread broadcast not only throughout Russia, but throughout the whole world, concerning his heir and he proposes to give them the most effective denial possible.

For this reason he has just given permission for the court photographer to take a series of pictures of the Czarovich showing him engaged in pursuits such as would be utterly impossible, were he of the published stories of his physical condition true.

One shows him cycling, another rowing, but by far the best likeness is one showing him in full military uniform as colonel-in-chief of one of the many regiments of which he is nominally in command. By his side stands his proud father in a similar uniform.

This photograph gives an excellent idea of the Czarovich as he is today—a normal young boy growing by leaps and bounds.

OCEANIC RAN ASHORE AND WRECKED

London, Sept. 10.—A notice posted today at the offices of the White Star line declares that the steamer Oceanic, the loss of which was announced by the press bureau last night, ran ashore.

This is the first definite news as to what caused the loss of the Oceanic. Last night it was said that she had been wrecked on the north coast of Scotland, but no further details were given. The Oceanic had been taken over for government service. All her officers and crew were saved.

Officials of the White Star line here attribute the loss of the Oceanic to the lack of lights off the Scottish coast. They had received no advices today explaining the mishap, but pointed out that marine lights had been extinguished on account of the war.

THE WAR TAX BILL COMPLETED

Washington, Sept. 10.—Democrats of the Ways and Means Committee today completed the War Revenue Tax Bill, providing for a tax of 3 percent on all freight transportation an increase of 50 cents on beer and 20 cents a gallon on all domestic wines. This will net an estimated revenue of $107,000,000 a year. The tax on freight was agreed to after a conference with the President, who had expressed opposition to it.

GERMAN SHIPS IN GULF

WILL NOT ASK FOR A RECOUNT

Concord, N. H., Sept. 10.—State Senator John C. Hutchins of North Stratford, who lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in last week's primary election by two votes in a total of 11,000, will not ask for a recount.

In a letter to State Treas. George Farland chairman of the Democratic State Committee, Senator Hutchins so announced and pledges his hearty support in the coming campaign to his successful opponent, Connelley At-ber W. Noone of Peterboro.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO MOVIE FANS

The majority of the fans probably know that Mary Fuller has left the Edison company and joined one of the independents. It is curious to note that Mary has a wonderful reputation. There is a certain movie picture company which has just concluded a "movie favorite" contest. The contest was supposed to close September 10. But why did it close a week before the given time? In July Mary Fuller joined an independent company. Who can imagine what happened when the fans knew that she had joined that company. The last four editions of a magazine tell the story. In the first three, the leader in the contest had 192,000 votes, the lowest had 5,000. And Mary had neither the highest nor the lowest. But the last week, she jumped from merely nothing to second place landing a vote of 180,000 votes. That is what she did in one week. She received more votes in one week than the winner in the whole contest. What could she have done if the contest had lasted the last week as was intended? The winner of the contest is a player who has been with her particular company about two years.

Also, the winners, for there was also a contest for the most popular actor were to play the leads in a prize money picture story. The "movie" man has seen "favorite" contests, but never anything like this one. No explanation was given out as to why the contest closed so abruptly. Well, anyway, here's hoping to see Mary Fuller back in the licensed ranks in the near future.

The fans who attended the Portsmouth Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, saw the first Vitaphone picture featuring Leah Baird alone, who returned to that company. She did excellent work in the picture, which is "The Upper Hand." From the movie man's point of view, she looks more at home with the Vitaphone than with the company she was with recently. She will be seen in many fine plays in the future. Watch for them. Have you noticed the new trade

The movie of the end of this month's stories are the best part of the whole picture.

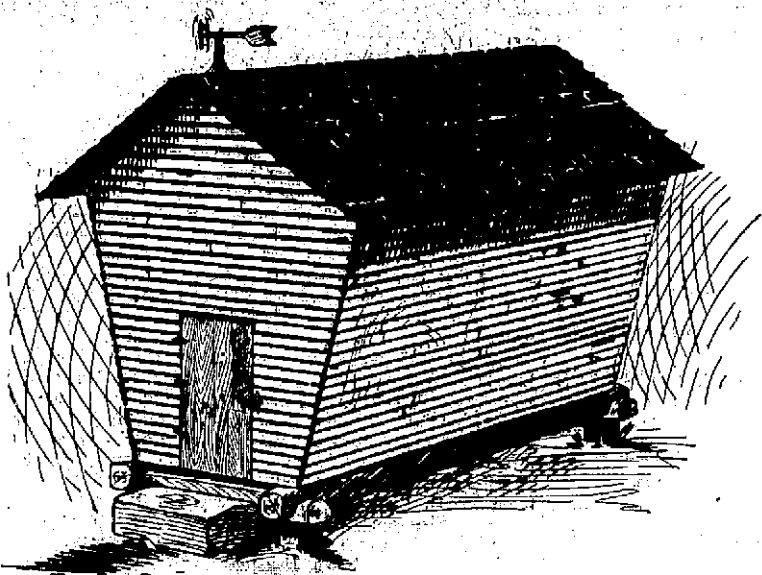

What do you know? John Bunny has just completed arrangements for a vaudeville tour of the world. Although he will be seen in the near future in Vitaphone plays, they will be those that are being held back by that company. His work at the studio is over for a while. Would it be great if he would come to Portsmouth—what kind of a reception would he receive?

A call for "corn flakes" often brings some one of the many brands of ordinary flakes. To avoid disappointment ask for, and insist upon Post Toasties.

Selecting Legislators.

A contemporary makes timely comment on the sort of men needed as legislators. It says that men to make the laws should possess business or professional ability of a high order, and that the proper way to test their qualifications is to note what they have accomplished in their own businesses or professions. "It is useless to expect," says this newspaper, "sound and practical business for the state of a man who has never been practical and sound in his private business."

There is much truth in this observation, and it is a truth that is overlooked by too many voters. Of late years the habit of electing men to the legislature on all grounds but the right one has become too common. Personal popularity counts for too much and the real qualifications for the work in mind are too largely ignored. This baneful habit is characteristic of no particular section, but is so widespread that the tone of legislation is gradually falling in many states.

The voters must abandon this practice if they hope to place legislation on a proper basis. They must wake up to the fact that law making is serious business, and that it cannot be conducted properly by every Tom, Dick and Harry because he happens to be a "good fellow." There are lots of good fellows to whom we would not entrust the management of our private affairs; why, then, should we push them into the legislature to do the most important work of the state?

It is time that the voters should take their duties a little more seriously. They should remember that in electing members of the legislature the aim should be not to give some good fellow a good office, but to select men of character and ability who will represent their constituents fairly, faithfully and ably. They should not overlook the importance of legislation, and should choose for the work men who measure up to the proper standard. Neglect to do this results in legislation which in many cases does more harm than good.

There is a chance for reform here, and the power lies wholly in the hands of the voters. It is all right to be a good fellow, but that alone does not qualify a man for the serious work of legislation. And if this work is to be attended to as it should be the voters must have a care when selecting the men to represent them in the law making body of the state.

New York city has opened a number of free public markets and it is claimed they are doing something toward reducing the cost of living in the metropolis, especially of those who are not ashamed of the old-time market basket. Recourse to this would do much toward reducing the cost of living, even in the absence of municipal markets, but most American women long since renounced it in favor of the telephone and the delivery clerk, conveniences that have to be paid for.

Peaches are rotting on the ground in New Jersey, and yet the price to buyers would not indicate it. And the same is true of early apples in some sections, according to reports. One trouble seems to be that products are considered worth about so much, and that when the price begins to fall they are allowed to rot. This is not as the "ultimate consumer" would have it, but the way it is, and under the circumstances it is difficult to see where help is coming from.

An exchange speaks of an automobilist who ran his car down a bank to avoid being hit by a great machine that came thundering up behind, and says the people in the big car did not even stop to thank him for saving their lives. It is highly probable they imagined that it was his own life that the fellow was looking out for. That, under the circumstances, would be the natural presumption.

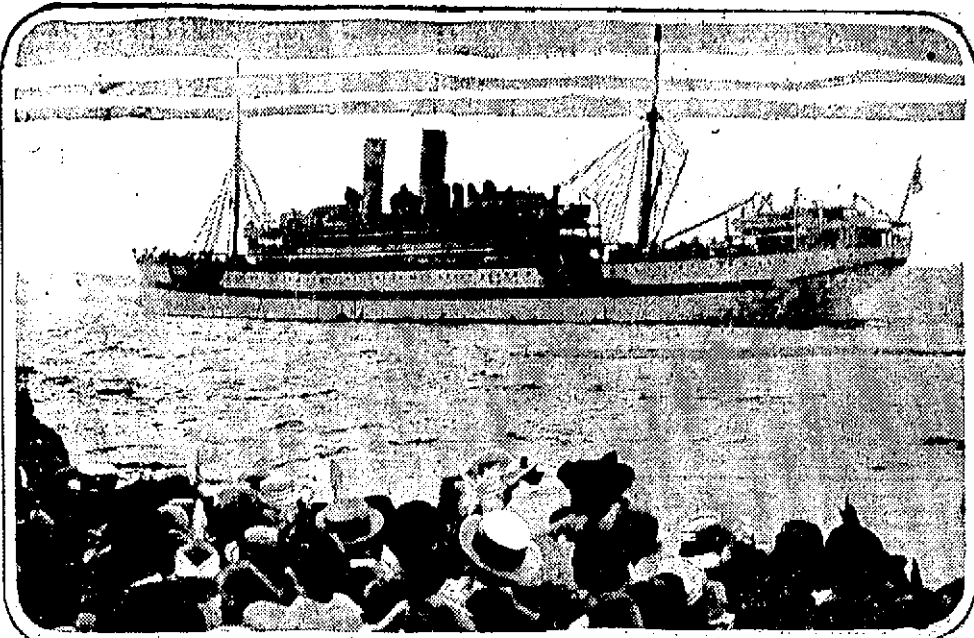

An exchange has revamped the old saying, "The pen is mightier than the sword," into "The typewriter is mightier than the machine gun." But in this connection another old saying, "Circumstances alter cases," applies, and there are times and conditions when the sword and machine gun rise superior to the pen and the typewriter.

The Connecticut fair and Charter Oak races opened at Hartford Monday with an attendance of from 75,000 to 90,000. This always is a big event, and the presence of Speaker Champ Clark of the national house of representatives, who made a speech, of course, probably had something to do with calling out the crowd.

The saloons of London are now closed at 11 p. m. But this is merely a war measure and there is no expectation that the "reform" will be permanent.

Golf championships may be worth as much as ever, but just at this time the general public is not getting excited over them. It has "bigger fish to fry."

America's Relief Ship Red Cross Carries Doctors and Nurses on Mission of Mercy to European War Zone.

Photos copyright, 1914, by American Press Association.

With thirty American doctors and 120 Red Cross nurses the American relief ship Red Cross was made ready to sail from New York for Europe on its mission of mercy. There was a halt just as the ship was about to sail when formal protests were made by the French and English consuls in New York against the presence of German sailors aboard the Red Cross. About three-fifths of the crew was made up of subjects of countries now at war. The consuls insisted that the crew be entirely of American citizens or those of other neutral countries. Miss Mabel T. Boardman, head of the American Red Cross, readily agreed to this. The top picture shows the Red Cross as she steamed down the Hudson, friends of the nurses and physicians waving goodbye from the dock. The lower picture shows some of the nurses waving farewell from the deck of the steamer.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Mayor Barry's Vote.

Nothing more clearly shows the democratic protest against Senator Hollis' domination of the party than the vote given to Mayor Barry of this city as a candidate for United States senator. The last candidate to make his announcement, having practically but two weeks in which to conduct his campaign, employing no press bureau, Mayor Barry ran second in the race. In Nashua he received 676 votes to 148 cast for Stevens and 88 cast for Page, having a majority almost double the combined vote of the other two candidates. His vote in Manchester was highly complimentary, and it was surprisingly large in various parts of the state. The support that he received is the more remarkable when his campaign is contrasted with that made by Judge Page. The latter brought his candidacy to the attention of the democrats through every newspaper of the state; he had a well prepared statement of his public service and of his qualifications for the position of United States senator, having besides a most competent campaign manager. Mayor Barry, on the other hand, conducted his own canvass, and it was largely confined to his individual efforts upon the stump. It is apparent from the returns that if the opposition to Hollis had united upon Mayor Barry some weeks earlier he would have defeated Congressman Stevens in the primary.—Nashua Telegraph.

Same Progressives.

The Progressives of New Hampshire are to be commended for their good sense in favoring Senator Gallinger for re-election. By their support of one of the sanest and most conservative men in Congress they divorce themselves once and for all from the clap-trap "principles" of the second Chicago Convention; they also show their desire that New Hampshire shall continue to be represented in the nation's councils by men of ability and national standing.

Senator Gallinger is one of the small group of men who have remained faithful to their duty to the people by staying at their posts in Washington working for their country, while other members of Congress went home to work for their own re-election. Not only has Senator Gallinger been at his post, but he has exerted a great influence on legislation. No bill ever comes before the senate that he does not immediately set himself to study. His knowledge of the Constitution is a stone of stumbling to those who favor ill-advised radical measures. With War Probably Long With Losses Enormous.

Outpost combats, however interesting and characteristic, do not justify us in counting upon the certainty of a prompt and definite victory.

I find too much said about the Germans being demoralized. The war now beginning is a war to the death. On it hangs the existence of Germany as well as that of France. It will probably be long and the losses enormous.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS

Gather for Annual Clambake at "Eagle's Nest" on Thursday.

Fifty or more of the officials of the several divisions of the Boston and Maine road assembled at "Eagle's Nest," West Seabrook on Thursday for a day of pleasure, and according to all accounts they had it. It was the annual gathering and clambake followed by several sporting events. The bake prepared by Section Foreman Leavitt of Pine Point eclipsed anything ever put on the heated rocks by the man who has no superior in this line. A baseball game delighted the spectators in which Chief Engineer Colthrell and General Manager Pollock were in the pitchers box for the opposing teams. Both men caused no small amount of surprise in their work on the firing line and showed that they knew a thing or two about the national game and can come back with a very little training.

Among those who attended were General Manager P. B. Pollock; Supt. John Houke, Superintendent, Motive Power, C. H. Wiggins, Master Mechanic, D. A. Smith; Supervisor of Bridges and Buildings, B. E. Pickett; Division Supervisor, G. K. Thornton; Track Supervisor, C. W. Lewis; Trainmasters, F. D. Morey, A. P. Milliken, A. S. Twombly; General Agent, F. F. Grant.

WAR AS THE RUSSIAN PEOPLE LOOK ON IT

Petrograd, St. Petersburg, Sept. 11.—The following account of how the Russian people, rank and file, view the war, was written today by an Englishman who was in the Russian capital during the days when the great European war was getting under way.

"I was here when the Japanese war was declared," said a little man, who was too excited to keep his thoughts to himself; "but what a difference. Then it was the Government who sent us to war. Now we go gladly, eh?"

"We were standing on a balcony overlooking the Theatre Square in Moscow. Below us was passing an immense crowd of men and boys, shouting, singing and waving flags, while the inscription 'Down with Austria!' jerked and swayed above the heads of its hearers. From every street they deplored into the square, some singing their national anthem, others a religious chant, while a few broke into the 'Marseillaise,' forgetting that they had learned it—and sang it perhaps—only two or three years ago in revolutionary processions."

"Do you hear them; do you hear them?" he gasped, clutching my arm. He spoke entirely in gasps, and sucked in his breath between each sentence, giving the effect (somewhat modified) of an exhausted pipe. "They are not wild, not at all, these people. They believe this war is right. They are fighting for the Slavs, for Holy Russia. Bravo Russia, bravo France, bravo England!" He shouted down to the crowd directly below us, who for the moment had stopped singing. They caught up his cheers and passed on. "No," he said, "this is not a war for the Empire, or else they would all be drunk and wild. They are not wild. They are following their hearts now. It is almost sacred. Come, come, they are all going to the Voezhenska Gate."

We went down into the square and immediately lost each other in the swirl of people. The whole crowd went bareheaded. An old man, looking on, had his hat knocked off. He caught the offender—a boy—by the ear and dragged him to a policeman. "He knocked my hat off," he spluttered. "I should not have been on," said the policeman. "They were singing 'God Save the Czar.' I am no musician, but I know what is sacred, thank God."

There is a big shrine in front of the Holy Gate, which is one of many gates in the Kremlin walls, and this shrine was gleaming with an array of candles by the time I arrived there. The road leading up to it forms a square immediately under the walls, and there, in the insufficient light of two lamps, stood an enormous crowd, waiting for something to happen, something mystic, the expression of that strange feeling they possessed. The night was heavy with coming rain, and in the dim light the crowd of rough peasants, hushed by the expectation of Divine blessing, some shock-headed, with legs cross-gartered like 12th century villains, seemed under the old gateway, lit by gutting candles, more likely to be playing for help from their mediaeval savior than benevolence the blessing of God on modern warfare. The bishop, too, coming out from the shrine, helped the illusion with the fantastic embroidery of his robes. He bade some students fetch out the great icon of the Blessed Mother, and on the arrival of the Governor—prosaic figure in the old-time setting—began a prayer for the safety of the Russian arms.

On the hard, uneven cobbles they all knelt, there while he prayed; then slowly and quietly they began a chant and, beginning it on their knees, slowly they rose, and on their rising the chant swelled and thundered out till the walls around cast back the rich echoes. There are times when that chant might easily sound colorless and monotonous; it hangs for bars on one note, and like all old chants was solemn and restrained; but on that night it was the cry of a simple people, and in its stark simplicity achieved an effect that no chorus in any opera could ever hope to produce. There was an insistence in its very monotony, and appeal that was compelling by reason of its extreme humility, that knew none of the bombast and self-laudations by which so many suppliants hope to obtain mercy. To the Russians war is a very terrible thing, although they welcomed it with brave hurrahs. None have forgotten their last encounter, which is still known simply as "The Disaster."

And so the people newly embroiled in a fresh campaign, of one accord met together by the Sacred Gate of their Holy Moscow, and with all fervor and singleness of heart besought the blessing of their God upon their arms. The long chant boomed and echoed round the gate, till in the pauses it was hard to tell which was the echo and which the distant thunder. The lights flickered and grew dim, but the deep bass voices rolled out the heavy notes in sonorous continuity, ending each appeal with a hushed, "O. Gospode Gospode—" "O Lord of Lords." Towering in front of me stood a peasant, a blonde, shaggy giant. He looked much as his looked, who labored to build that ancient gate. He wore the old skirted coat and leggings of straw. The light, which he obscured, shone through his hair and turned it into an aureole about his head. When he lifted up his voice everyone took their time from him. Yet he noticed nobody, but stood holding his hat in one hand and his bundle and his staff before him in the other, and gazed for something beyond the lights, beyond the shrine, and the great gate behind it. At length the Bishop blessed us, and the crowd began to move away. The giant took a deep breath and crossed himself. "Now I can fight," he said. Then he looked at me. "They call me Dimitri," he said, holding out his hand in friendship.

There is in Moscow an eating-house below ground, where the peasants go and eat and drink and smoke. When I went the next day I found chiefly soldiers there, looking strange at each other in their new uniforms. I had hardly sat down when I felt a crash on my shoulder, and turned to see an enormous young fellow, shaggy and shorn, in brand new khaki, grinning down at me.

"What do you think of me?" he asked, holding himself at attention. "Very fine," I said, from motives of policy.

"I am splendid, eh?" he said. "Splendid," I answered, wishing to rub my shoulder. "And my boots?" he asked. "Must have cost a fortune," I said. "Seven roubles," he answered, and finger against his nose. Then he lowered his hand, as though to stroke his beard, and paused again, for he had no beard.

"Oh," he said, with a choke, "They have taken everything from me—my wife, my home, my beard. I should have fought better in a beard. However, what does it matter? It's all for Holy Russia. It will grow again when I return. I shall return. I felt it last night. Do you remember?"

"What?" I gasped, "they call you 'Why, Dimitri, of course,' he said, laughing at my astonishment.

THE QUAKER GIRL

The attraction at the Portsmouth Theatre September 17 will be the famous musical comedy hit "The Quaker Girl," which is being sent to this city by John P. Slocum. "The Quaker Girl" has a history which probably never has been duplicated by any musical comedy, for it has had runs in London, Paris and New York, ranging in years instead of months as do the average musical plays. Its score is by Lionel Monckton and book by James C. Tanner, while the lyrics are the joint efforts of Adrian Ross and Percy Greenbank. The music has been hummed and whistled all over the civilized world, but is of that remarkable quality that does not lose in repetition. The wonderful "Come to the Ball" waltz is conceded to be the most fitting melody of decades and compares favorably with the best Strauss rhythms.

SULLOWAY GIVEN OVATION

Banquet of Cutler Club Largely Attended by Prominent Men of This Section.

With a larger attendance than ever before in its history the annual banquet of the Cutler Club was held on Thursday at the Sea View House, Hampton Beach, where a large delegation of members and their guests paid homage to the late Col. John G. Cutler, founder of the organization, which numbers many prominent in the political life of this section of New Hampshire.

President Moses A. Perkins of Bellingham called the gathering to order. In a few words, mentioning the object of the club and proposing a toast to the memory of Colonel Cutler.

Following the serving of the banquet officers were elected as follows: Honorary President, Hon. Cyrus A. Sulloway; President, Moses Perkins, Bellingham; vice president, Charles M. Hoyt, Haverhill, Mass.; second vice president, John T. Welch, Dover, secretary and treasurer, Judge John N. Noyes of Plaistow. Four new members were voted into the organization, Frederick H. Magison, John C. Dinmore of Haverhill, Mass., C. H. Woodward and John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth.

Hon. Cyrus A. Sulloway spoke briefly. Ex-Postmaster Hoyt of Haverhill spoke informally, saying that he was glad to meet the honorary president, Hon. Cyrus A. Sulloway, a veteran member of the club, who told interesting facts concerning the founding of the club. He spoke of the great heartedness of the late Colonel Cutler and of his effort to establish a permanent organization.

President Perkins next presented John H. Bartlett of Portsmouth, who was heard with interest. He said the platform of the club was sociability and good faith. He made many humorous allusions to different members of the club. Colonel Bartlett also eulogized Sulloway who has never shut his ear to appeals for those in sorrow, misery or distress.

The next speaker was Christopher R. Woodward of Portsmouth and he said he was most gratified in being elected to membership in the Cutler Club. He spoke interestingly and related incidents in his profession. He spoke briefly of politics in New Hampshire and said he hoped in all cases the best men would win. Another speaker was Dennis Donovan of Haverhill, Mass., who paid a tribute to Congressman Sulloway, whom he said had added new lustre to the state of New Hampshire.

Others who were heard included members of the newspaper profession several of whom were present, after the cigars were passed and a pleasant social enjoyed.

CAPTAIN OF POLICE FOR SPACE OF TWO MINUTES

New York, Sept. 9.—For the space of two minutes today James B. Hasey, former inspector of police, was a captain on the force in good standing. Then he was suspended again. His reinstatement enables him to draw his back salary from May 7, 1913 when he was dismissed from the force to the present time, approximately $3700.

Hasey was one of the four inspectors convicted last year of conspiracy to keep out of the state a witness wanted by the district attorney, in his investigation of police graft. Hasey served a portion of his sentence in the penitentiary before the appellate division reversed the verdict. The higher court affirmed the verdict in the cases of the other three inspectors.

Charges of violating the department's rules and neglect of duty in 1911 caused his suspension today after his brief term of reinstatement.

AUSTRIA MAY SUE FOR PEACE WITHOUT GERMANY

Faces Bankruptcy and Revolution After Russian Victories--Last Army Almost Surrendered.

London, Sept. 10.—The Russian foreign office at Petrograd is quoted in dispatches received here as professing to expect that Austria will sue for peace independently of Germany within the next 10 days. If she does not, the Russian foreign office is said to believe, a revolution is certain. Austria is bankrupt and all efforts to float a war loan have failed.

RUSSIANS MARCHING TOWARD BERLIN

London, Sept. 10.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Rome says: "Dispatches from Vienna state that the advance guards of the Russian army are marching toward Berlin. The Russian troops have invaded Silesia and the capture of Breslau is imminent."

A dispatch from Rome to Reuters' Telegram Company says: "According to Gallien's advice the Austrians have made several attempts to re-occupy the offensive against the Russians with disastrous results. There were further great Austrian losses."

Another dispatch to Reuters from Petrograd says the Austrians have begun evacuating Cracow, regarded as the stronghold of Austrian and German forces in Galicia.

A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Rome says:

"A message from Vienna states that it is officially admitted there that Archduke Frederick lost 120,000 men in the recent Galicia battles, or one-fourth of his entire command."

"The Germans are marching south toward Poland to assist the Austrians before this aid can be given if they must cross the Vistula river, where the Russians are preparing to check them."

GERMANS RE-ENFORCE AUSTRIA

Petrograd, Sept. 10.—Fighting with the Austrian army of Gen. von Auffenberg and Dunik has again been resumed. Following their decisive defeat at Rawa Ruska, they have been heavily reinforced by German troops and they are now fighting along a line west of Rawa Ruska extending southwest through Siedlce to a point near the Dnieper river. The heaviest fighting is reported here to have been done by the 14th Austrian army corps, which was brought from Alsace to reinforce the main Austrian army. The official reports received from Gen. Ruzsky say his corps lost heavily in yesterday's fighting and that one of its battle standards, two eagles and 500 prisoners were taken.

According to the chiefs at the war office the Austrians have lost fully one-quarter of their effective strength in the fighting which resulted in their being driven from Russian Poland. The plan to round them up and capture or annihilate them failed through the arrival of strong German reinforcements from the western theater of fighting, supported by a large number of rapid fire and field artillery.

It is stated, however, that the Austrians are constantly retreating and that additional Russian reinforcements are being sent to Gen. Ruzsky to enable him to continue his offensive. The army of Gen. Brusilov, which is moving westward from Lemberg, is operating with that of Gen. Ruzsky, according to the latest information obtainable from the war office.

A later dispatch from Gen. Ruzsky declares he has captured 12,000 Austrians with 31 guns and 150 officers, including the general commanding the Austrian 15th division, in the fighting at Rawa Ruska. Troops captured were a part of the 6th army corps.

"The Russian investment of Przemyśl continues. The Russians are swelling the fortified Austrian position from the eastward, but up to the present no attempt has been made to take the Austrian position by storm and the bombardment will continue until reinforcements now en route reach the scene."

ALL AUSTRIA IN GLOOM

Vienna (via Rome) Sept. 10.—All Austria was plunged into gloom today when official admission was made here that the recent operations against the Russians have cost the dual empire one-fourth of her first line of effective fighting men. Simultaneously it became known for the first time that the operations in Galicia and Russian Poland have been under the personal direction of the Archduke Francis Frederick.

The announcement at the war office stated that since the operations against Russia began the total losses in killed, wounded and missing of the Austrian first line army total the enormous number of 120,000 men. In addition, by reason of the attack by an overwhelming number of Russian who have outnumbered the Austrians at all times, large quantities of military stores, ammunition and cannon have been lost.

The economic situation is admittedly very grave. All efforts on the part of the government to float a war loan have failed and this is causing as much worry as the reverses on the front. There is a disposition to blame the Germans for having failed to come to the assistance of the Austrians before the invasion was begun.

By Russia, Uzienski appeals were sent to Berlin asking that troops be sent to Lemberg so that the city could be defended. It was not a fortified position, and when the German help failed to arrive there was nothing for the general staff to do but to order the troops to retreat from the city in order to prevent its being destroyed by a general bombardment.

No details of the exact losses are being made public by the war office. The admission that they total 120,000 men, with supplies and guns, is all that is known here. Rumors are in circulation that many of the best known officers in the army have been either killed or captured, but there are no official casualty lists.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Sept. 11.—Plans for American substitutes for many of the European imports which on account of the war, cannot be obtained for an indefinite time, are being made by manufacturers in New England. Either the articles themselves or substitutes must be supplied in the U. S. Interviews with various Boston manufacturers develop the following prospects: Kid boots will take the place of leather boots. Books will be printed on news paper. Imitation ornaments will go out of fashion. The American pig must supplant the Russian bear in the supply of bristlin brushes. Cloth, instead of leather will be used in the manufacture of automobile and chair cushions. Mercantile cotton will be evolved in the substitution of American for European dyes. Last year the United States paid Russia alone nearly $9,000,000 for goldfish and seal skin hides. Enormous sums went to Germany, Belgium and France. Kid, on the other hand, is imported from neutral countries. Shoes are one of the few commodities which have not risen in price since the war began, the supply of material being sufficient to last until spring.

Boston, Sept. 11.—The Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals announces that during August the agents examined a total of 3011 animals of which 485 were horses belonging to fish peddlars and hawkers, secured 45 convictions out of 50 prosecutions, took 144 horses from work and killed 119. In the stock yards 19,042 animals were examined and 23 killed. At the free dispensary of the society 423 animals received treatment during the month.

Boston, Sept. 11.—The city of Boston is going to erect a $25,000 elephant house in the Franklin Park Zoo. It will include a big pool, where the elephants can roll about in the water to their heart's content. The architect has studied the Bronx Zoo elephant house in New York and promises a more useful building for both the elephants and the public here.

Boston, Sept. 11.—J. Mott Hallowell, a candidate for the Republican nomination for Attorney General, in a letter to Chairman Thurston of the Republican State Committee, gives notice of his intention to offer in the Republican State Convention, if he can obtain a proxy and attend a "bank favoring legislation requiring the state to provide halls at various central points where candidates can announce their platforms and address the voters."

Boston, Sept. 11.—At the request of Governor Walsh, Lieut. Governor Barry will represent the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at the observance of the centennial of the National lyric, The Star Spangled Banner, at Baltimore on Friday and Saturday of this week. As the governor's unable to attend, the first corps of Cadets, which offers him their escort, will not go to Baltimore. The Massachusetts party left for Baltimore on one of the regular trains last night.

Boston, Sept. 11.—Plans for a nation-wide campaign among the Hebrews to relieve the distress of their race affected by the war, will be made at a mass meeting on September 27 in one of the largest halls in Boston. Louis D. Brandeis and Dr. Schmarny Levin, a former member of the Russian Duma will be the principal speakers.

HUTCHINS WILL NOT ASK RECOUNT IN N. H. PRIMARY

Concord, N. H., Sept. 10.—State Senator John C. Hutchins of North Stratford, who lost the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in last week's primary election by two votes in a total of 11,000 will not ask a recount. In a letter to the chairman of the Democratic State Committee, Senator Hutchins so announces and pledges his hearty support in the coming campaign to his successful opponent, Councilor Albert W. Noone of Peterboro.

FINED $250 FOR KILLING A MAN WHILE HUNTING DEER

Dover, Me., Sept. 10.—Cornelius S. Table of Brooklyn, N. Y., was found guilty in the supreme court today of carelessly and negligently shooting a human being while in pursuit of wild game. He was fined $250 and costs. Table shot and killed Charles Dodge of Guilford at Schoodic, a year ago while hunting.

THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR OF 1870-1871

Out of the short but terrible Franco-Prussian war came two things that have endured up to now—France again became a republic and Germany took over Alsace and Lorraine. In the war of 1871 France was endeavoring to regain her lost provinces, but it is hardly within the remotest possibilities that the present war can restore the Empire.

On September 4, 1870, the third Republic was proclaimed, and a government of national defense was performed, with Jules Favre, Clemenceau, Ferry, Jules Simon and Gambetta as the chief members, and General Trochu, the militia commander of Paris at its head.

There were still French troops in the field, mostly reserves, and fighting took place almost daily, but it was half hearted, and in most cases the Germans were victorious. A few scattering French successes served to lighten France and further put off the conclusion of peace.

England again intervened, and asked King William to grant terms more favorable to France. For this England was accused by Bismarck of violating neutrality. But Granville denied it, but about that time six British colliers which delivered coal at Rouen, were sunk in the Seine by the Prussians, and England narrowly escaped participating in the war. Bismarck saved the day by explaining that the colliers were seized and sunk for strategic purposes, and that Prussia would pay an indemnity.

Gradually the Germans closed in on Paris by September 19th, the capital was regularly invested, and the Germans had encountered no serious resistance in the field after the battle at Sedan. The investing force was far inferior to the besieged in numbers, but the 350,000 troops in Paris were largely half-trained provisional levy, brimming with dissatisfaction and the spirit of revolution, which afterward broke out in the Commune.

After the surrender of Strasbourg, September 28th, Gambetta escaped from Paris in a balloon and issued a proclamation from Tours, calling for a levy on Masse. On October 11th, General von der Tann took Orleans after administering a severe defeat to the French. Then came Bazaine's surrender of Metz on October 27th, in November a gleam of hope came to France when General Aurelie de Paladine, with the army of the Loire, defeated General von der Tannard, and on November took Orleans. The Germans, however, recaptured the city December 4th.

Fighting continued during December. General Chanzy making a desperate stand, was decisively by the Duke of Mecklenburg on the Loire, December 10th.

On January 10th, 1871, Chanzy's army was entirely crushed by Prince Frederick Charles at La Nans, and this ended the fighting with the exception of that around Paris. The capital was facing starvation. There was lack of both food and fuel. The people were on the brink of revolution. Late in December the Germans had captured Mont Averon, one of the forts defending Paris.

France was then ready for her last stand. On June 19th the French led by General Trochu, made a desperate sortie from Mont Valerien, and were again at Frankfurt.

repulsed with heavy loss. The Germans thus administered the "last crushing blow of the war, and on June 28, 1871, Paris capitulated, and the Germans took possession.

A partial armistice was arranged by Jules Favre and Bismarck, to enable France to establish a responsible government to make peace terms. The remains of Bourbaki's army retreated into Switzerland and the last of the soldiers of France had disappeared from the field.

In the meantime Count Bismarck's ambition had been fulfilled—the German Empire was an actuality. The Germans had occupied Versailles, the home of the French kings and emperors, and from Versailles on January 18, 1871, was issued the proclamation creating the German empire, with King William I of Prussia as Emperor.

On February 8th elections were held throughout France for a national assembly which met at Bordeaux Feb. 12, and which on Feb. 17, elected Thiers, ex-chief of the Executive, the holder of which office later was called President. Meanwhile the surrender of Belfort February 16 closed the military operations of the war. France was helpless. The Germans occupied all the forts around Paris. Nearly all French soldiers were killed or wounded or prisoners of war, and French territory was occupied by more than half a million Germans.

It was a Herculean task the new French government undertook, when at last France was forced to make peace terms. The unceasing labors of Thiers resulted, Feb. 26th in the arrangement of preliminary terms with Germany, which March were formally ratified by the national assembly by a vote of 548 to 107.

The terms of the treaty were:

The cession by France of the German speaking part of the Lorraine, including Metz and Thionville and of Alsace, excepting Belfort.

France to pay five million of francs (one billion dollars) as a war indemnity—one-fifth to be paid in 1871 and the balance in installments extending over three years.

The evacuation of French territory to begin upon the ratification of the treaty. Paris and some western departments to be evacuated at that time, the German troops in other departments to be withdrawn gradually as the indemnity was paid.

The German troops to be maintained at the cost of France and not to levy on the departments occupied by them.

Inhabitants of the annexed territory to be allowed to choose between the two nationalities.

Prisoners of war to be immediately set at liberty.

Negotiations for a definite treaty to be opened at Brussels after the ratification of the preliminary treaty.

The administration of the French departments occupied by German troops to be entrusted to French officials under supervision of the chiefs of the German corps of occupation.

The Brussels conference was then held and the Franco-Prussian war of 1870-1871, which created the Third Republic of France and the German Empire, was officially ended May 10, 1871.

THE SICK MAN OF THE EAST

(By Herbert Temple, European Manager of the International News Service.)

London, Sept. 11.—All to gain and nothing to lose. That is the status of Turkey in the Great European war. None in touch with the situation, military expert or diplomat, was surprised when the "Sick Man of the East" decided to take a hand in the fracas. The only wonder was that Turkey did not get in sooner.

Doubtless the Porte was waiting to see "which way the cat jumped." If the allies had started out victorious, Turkey might have cast her lot with her great and good friend, England. But the success of German arms in France, the steady pounding of the German lines, daily forging ahead, nearer and nearer to Paris, probably convinced Turkey that the safest place would be on the side of Germany.

Therefore Turkey declared war against the allies. Her objective is supposed to be the Russian Caucasus and Egypt, which country formerly belonged to Turkey.

In this war, Turkey has nothing to lose, because the Balkan alliance stripped her of almost all of her European territory in the war that began two years ago. The government is bankrupt and has no money. It is fighting on borrowed money and doubtless the Porte thinks it might as well be a little deeper in debt as in its present financial condition. When a government is already bankrupt without a very flattering prospect of paying off its obligations, it may not hesitate to incur a few more. "Might as well be hanged for a sheep as a lamb" is probably the attitude of the government.

Also Turkey had an army of some 600,000 men left over from the Balkan wars. She had to keep them in arms, because of the threatened second war with Greece, and it may be that the Porte thought these men might as well be fighting somebody.

But the most probable explanation of Turkey's participation in the war is that she was persuaded by Germany. The fact that about seventy-two German officers are with the Turkish army gave notice to the world, early in the struggle that if Turkey came in, she would be on the side of Germany. Should the Kaiser win out in the big war, with Turkey as an ally, it would be an excellent thing for Turkey.

The Balkan states that are Turkey's enemies, the states which partitioned Turkey in Europe, are Slavonic, and as such are on the side of Russia. Germany has asserted that her principal enemy in the great conflict is Russia, the Germans fighting originally to prevent the consummation of the Pan-Slavonic Union.

Therefore if Turkey should be on the winning side at the end of the war, it might help her considerably in regaining some of her lost territory, particularly the Aegean Islands, most of which went to Greece at the end of the Balkan war.

When Turkey mobilized her troops and declared war, it was said that she already had taken steps to attack Egypt. That African country, which formerly was a Turkish possession, is now a British Protectorate, though nominally autonomous, under the Khedive. To re-take Egypt it would be necessary only for the Turks to defeat the small British army now in that country. England is far too busy just now on the Continent to devote much attention to Egypt.

With the Czar having his hands full with Austria and with Germany in East Prussia and in Russian Poland the Turkish government might figure that it would be a safe time to invade the Caucasus, and win back some of the territory that Russians originally wrested from the Constantinople government.

At any rate, Turkey had nothing to gain by remaining neutral, little more to lose than she already has lost and in a general Armageddon, such as now is raging throughout Europe, almost anything might happen.

IS THERE AN ANSWER?

Can you tell me what kind of car dispatching is used on the local street railroad? If there is any it was badly twisted on Thursday afternoon. The 5.20 car out of Rye Beach, with a good many passengers arrived at Rye Center on time and here was held with the down car, for fifteen minutes, in the meanwhile the conductors doing enough telephoning to run a railroad, and the passengers freezing. Finally orders were given to run ahead and fifteen minutes late the car came along to within a few hundred yards of another siding, Foye Corner I believe, where two cars were met, one with passengers and the other empty, the last in the rear. After more argument the regular car started back toward Rye Beach with the others following and the passengers were informed that they were going way back to Rye Center. The conductor told passengers who suggested that they be transferred to the rear empty car, and that it go on toward Portsmouth, to "keep your shirt on." The run back to Rye Center was at least two miles and on to Foye Corner turned 200 yards, but back we went and upon arrival, after a convention of railway employers had been held, we were ordered into the car ahead, and then after more switch ing, allowed to come on, arriving in Portsmouth an hour late.

HOW WAR AFFECTS DAILY LIFE IN PARIS

By George Dufresne, Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, Sept. 10.—How war affects life of all but its essential and how it brings home the relative value of things, is being demonstrated here in Paris today while the Germans are hammering at our very gates. Take one small instance, the kiosks, which are the newstands of Paris. They are open, of course, for news is as necessary to the people as their daily bread. Like food, the news is being served out in its simplest and least fantastic form.

Small sheets convey the meagre news of the war that the war office allows to be disseminated. For the most part all other publications are gone. The weeklies have entirely disappeared. The comic weeklies have entirely disappeared. The comic weeklies died out like December flies from the first day of mobilization. It was not only that there was no demand for them, though that was true, but they died mainly because their staffs were composed mainly of young men who were called to the front. A few of the serious illustrated weeklies survive and they are in great demand.

For some deep reason of high policy, no doubt, the English papers have been cut off from Paris. That is not strange within the last few days, since the Germans have been so close, but it was noticeable in the early days of the war while still there was traffic between Paris and London. In revenge one sees everywhere hieroglyphics strange to the eye of western Europe—Turkish and Russian lettering. Russian papers, too, are now sold in the streets of Paris.

The cafes close at 8 o'clock. Their place had to be taken by something, for it was unthinkable that Parisians, with all the excitement of war, the prospects of siege and bombardment, could go to bed with the curfew. So the Champ Elysees have come into their own and from ten to midnight, where the people of Paris gather to gossip and discuss the war. There is little laughter and the voices seldom raise above a murmur. Soft drinks are sold from push-carts which have their stations along the curb.

The Luxembourg Gardens remain, as always, the playground of the children. But in the five weeks since mobilization they have gone to rack and ruin. The falling leaves cover the paths, there being no gardeners because all the men have gone to war. Everywhere is dust and desolation.

A strange sight, typical of the times, are the herds of sheep and cattle pastured in the Bois de Boulogne, which has returned to the pastoral age. Hundreds of animals are quartered there and on the race-course at Longchamp. The grass plots have been fenced off to afford grazing places for the cattle which have been driven into the city from the surrounding country to be slaughtered for food if the siege really comes.

The Montmartre of the artists and the tourists is dead, or at least in a state of suspended animation. It never was a very integral or vital part of Paris and it was the first to go. The clearing house of cosmopolitan pleasure has closed its doors and quenched its lights. There is sterner business on hand.

A little deserter from the front was found by a policeman, wandering disheveled and enfeebled in one of the boulevards. It was a long-haired spaniel with on its collar the name of its regiment, "The Twenty-sixth Cyclist Chasseurs." The deserter was taken to the police station and pending investigation, was washed and fed. It developed that the regiment to which it belonged, was usually stationed at Vincennes, but had been one of the first sent to the front. The opinion was that the deserter, at the first sound of firing, had turned and fled.

should be conducted to the enemy's lines and there handed over to the enemy whose cause he had so warmly espoused. So Mr. Kier Hardy might be forwarded to Ostend and sent upon a tour of inspection to Brussels. The German wireless service would monitor him to keep this country advised of his "dings."

"A gloomy browed man, Mr. J. Kier Hardy, who represents Hethy Tydd (Chunerman) in the Commons, is an anti-militarist, pro-Egyptian, pro-Zulu, and lastly—pro-German."

"He has been the advocate of almost every lost cause. Unlike his German Socialist friends, he is not a patriot first and Socialist next. German Socialists are fighting together for their country. He has insulted the King and honored bomb-throwing. Aged 58, Mr. Hardy was a miner in Scotland until his twenty-fourth year. He entered Parliament in 1892 as member for South-West Ham and has represented Merthyr since 1906."

Expressing his own attitude, Hardy says in the Labor Leader: "Smoking for the moment for myself, I repeat what will be universally acknowledged twelve months hence, that we are in this war without justification, reason, or excuse."

PLAN TO HAVE GERMAN PRISONERS SWEEP NORTH SEA OF MINES

London, Sept. 10.—That German prisoners be pressed into the service in the highly hazardous work of sweeping the North Sea of mines was a suggestion made in the House of Commons today.

Great Britain now has many small boats engaged in this task, and German prisoner crews under British officers would handle such craft if the plan outlined were adopted.

Speaking on the general question of mines Thomas J. McNamara, Parliamentary secretary of the Admiralty, said:

"This important question is engaging the attention of the Admiralty at present. More than that it would not be advisable to say now."

Savon Cadum, the great French Complexion soap, is medicated with the soothing, healing properties of Cadum Pomade, the famous remedy for skin troubles. It is a smooth, creamy soap that keeps the skin in a healthy condition, preserves the complexion and prevents infection. At leading drug and dept. stores, 50c a cake.

NEW HAMPSHIRE COLLEGE NOTES

Much Extension Work Is Planned.

New Hampshire College, Durham, N. H., Sept. 10.—John C. Kendall, director of extension work has just made arrangements with the United States Department of Agriculture for the expenditure in this state of the $10,000 which comes to New Hampshire through the provisions of the recently enacted Smith Lever bill.

The chairman of the state relations committee of the federal department has approved the projects for this state, the largest of which will be the establishment of a state leader and four new county agents. The extension service already has two county agents, one in Sullivan and the other in Cheshire county, which have hitherto had no financial support from the state, will be given the first opportunity to secure the new men. A county to secure an agent must raise $1200 by direct taxation under the provisions of a state law enacted at the last session of the legislature, and the citizens of the county must organize a county agricultural association which will raise a fund of $600. The federal department of agriculture will provide $600 and the college will provide $600. In this way $3000 will be provided for each agent, which will include his salary, transportation and all expenses. The county agent will be a general agricultural expert, ready to be called upon by anyone on any subject, who will either furnish the information or assistance desired or will help the inquirer.

Another project will be extension work in home economics. A capable woman will be given charge of organizing community clubs in different sections of the state for the purpose of studying some of the problems affecting the home and the neighborhood. The club studies will be carried on under the personal direction and supervision of the instructor in charge of the work with the aid of a local leader. Among the subjects to be studied in these clubs will be: selection, preparation and serving of food; preserving fruit and vegetables; sewing; sanitation; home decoration; labor saving devices in the home; and community social, industrial and economic conditions.

Another project is to be organization of new dairy cow test associations. There are already four of these in successful operation and two or three neighborhoods have asked the college to organize others. Six new ones are to be formed and a competent man will be engaged to take charge of this work. He will be available to help organize and to work with and assist the testers and see that they are making the most of their opportunities. There is a large amount of valuable information accumulating in each of these associations which will be put into shape for publication and it is thought that this work is really essential to dairy progress.

Another line of work to be taken up is orchard improvement. It is planned to place a man in charge of orchard demonstration work, as it is felt that one of the most effective ways of introducing any phase of orchard management is through the medium of a demonstration. The number of demonstrations to be given and the kinds of work which will be demonstrated will depend upon the season of the year, the relative importance of different lines of orcharding to the orchard interests of the state and the means available for conducting the work.

The last project is that of movable schools. Through these it is hoped to come into contact with the large number of citizens who have hitherto not been reached by either the college or the experiment station. Many, both young and old, are denied the advantages of the college laboratories and class rooms and it is to reach some of these who have not had the benefits of a college course or training in agriculture that these movable schools are intended. It is not the intention to undertake the holding of many movable schools this year, from one to two in a county. Each session will be devoted to a single subject, such as dairying, orcharding, poultry husbandry, forestry or some domestic science subject. Schools will be held upon request and guarantee of attendance. They will last from two to four days depending upon the subject to be taught and other circumstances.

BIG NATIONS SIGN PEACE PACTS WITH UNITED STATES

Washington, Sept. 10.—In the midst of the European war, Great Britain, France, Spain and China has agreed to sign peace commission treaties with the United States. One effect of the new conventions would be to prevent the United States from being drawn suddenly into the conflict.

Germany, Russia and Japan have signified their acceptance of the principle of these treaties, though negotiations have not advanced to the point of drafting conventions. Similar agreements with Turkey and Greece are almost ready for signature.

The treaties with Great Britain, France, Spain and China provide that all disputes, of every nature, whatsoever, to the settlement of which previous arbitration treaties or agreements do not apply in their terms, or are not applied in fact, shall, when diplomatic methods of adjustment have failed, be referred for investigation and report to a permanent international commission, and they agree not to declare war, or begin hostilities during such investigation and before the report is submitted.

The treaties specify that the report of the commission shall be completed within one year after it shall declare its investigation to have begun. Although all the contracting parties reserve the right to act independently after the report of the commission is submitted, the administration here believes a year's time will have the effect of "sober second thought" on all nations and prevent an outbreak in the precipitate manner in which Europe has just plunged itself into war.

The first four treaties are ready for signature and are regarded by President Wilson and Sec. Bryan as of far-reaching importance. While negotiations were begun before the European war broke out, their consummation practically will safeguard the United States from being drawn in over any question of neutrality or other controversy.

With the signing of treaties with Great Britain, France, Spain and China, the number of pacts of this kind negotiated by Sec. Bryan and known as "Investigation treaties" will number 26. Nineteen already have been ratified by the Senate, comprising the principal countries of Central and South America, Denmark, Norway, Switzerland, Portugal, Italy and the Netherlands. Sec. Bryan hopes to have 30 treaties ratified by Christmas, which he believes will assure the peace of the United States with the entire world.

SOCIAL FIFTEEN GIVE GRAND BALL

First of a Series of Dances
Given by Well Known
Colored Residents.

A grand ball was held in Freeman's Annex Hall, Thursday evening by the Social Fifteen. This is the first of a series of fifteen dances to be held by that club. It was an invitation affair and a large number of people were in attendance. Among them some from Salem, Boston and Haverhill. Music was furnished by the orchestra of Boston. Upwards of sixty couples were on the floor. Dancing was held until twelve o'clock when there was thirty minutes intermission. During the intermission, refreshments of champagne punch, ice cream and cake was served. At 12:30 dancing was resumed and the dancers enjoyed themselves until 3 o'clock.

The ball was declared to be a huge success and all are looking forward to a bigger and better time Thanksgiving. The Social Fifteen are a club of well known colored men of this city, namely, P. E. Kelly, A. A. Moore, G. E. Reid, P. Tilley, J. Downing, S. T. Peace, H. Adams, A. J. Adams, E. Lee, E. C. Hicks, J. Masenbury, J. O. Thurlington, J. Carey, J. Mathews, and A. Helton.

More Property for Navy
Deeds were filed at Newport on Thursday completing the purchase by the government of additional property north of and adjacent to the government landing.

The transfer completes 32,279 square feet of land which belonged to the Bogs estate, and will give the government an additional frontage on the harbor of nearly one hundred feet. This will be used for floats and landing purposes of the navy.

VETERANS GOING TO AMESBURY

Members of Franklin Pierce
Association The First to Respond.

All the conditions are making for a good muster at the fair this year although the fact that it is the same time as the Brockton Fair will prevent some of the tubs coming that would otherwise have responded.

As soon as the decision was made Secretary Manning got to work and sent out notices with the entry blanks to many organizations. Replies were not expected for another week, but already the Eureka No. 1 of Portsmouth, has responded and will send 60 men and a band of 12 pieces. Secretary Manning is confident that about the same number of tubs will participate as last year and the firemen's muster as already assured a good success.—Amesbury News.

This action on the part of the local veteran organization shows plainly that they are among the leaders in this line of sport. If "Observer" and others who have been belittling the vets desire to show their mettle, why not take the True W. Priest to Amesbury and compete with the veteran organization. This would be on neutral ground and perhaps put an end to some of the derogatory statements that have appeared in the public press against the local veteran organization.

The young man who likes to be "in the game" when it comes to good dressing will find our young men's suits "classy to the limit." He'll find here three special makes of strictly young men's styles—models that are Fashion's last words for fall and the winter of 1914-1915. The $20 ones are exceptionally fine qualities. For lower-priced ones there are wonderfully good values at $15 and for the fellow who wants to pay $22.50 or $25 there are corresponding values.

OFFICER FINDS STOLEN HORSE

Rig Stolen From Local Stable
Found in Haverhill.

Word reached this city today from Chief of Police Hurley and Deputy Sheriff Shaw who succeeded in locating the horse, harness and surrey, stolen on Wednesday last, from the stables of Bishop Brothers, by a man giving his name as Moore.

With the aid of the Haverhill police the local officers got the horse and harness in that city, having previously located the vehicle at Newburyport where he exchanged it the day he hired the rig.

The officers have got a line on Moore and the chase will be kept up until he is landed behind the bars. The horse and carriage are now on the way to the owners. Sheriff Spinney joined the other officers in the case at Haverhill today.

Both Hughes and White, the other man arrested with him, have been photographed and the pictures sent to the Boston police by Sheriff Spinney. Hughes has had a large number of visitors to see him since he was brought here from Salem including several women. The local authorities are trying to learn about the career of the two.
